

Three dead and 93 infected after reported Anthrax outbreak in Indonesia

1688645340

1688645340

Three people have died after an anthrax outbreak in Indonesia that reportedly infected more than 90 people who consumed contaminated meat. Health officials in Yogyakarta province, in the south of the country's most populous island, Java, confirmed this week that three people had died after eating beef thought to be contaminated with the bacterial infection. "For death cases, there are three people in Semanu Sub-district, Gunung Kidul District, Yogyakarta," the Ministry of Health said.